NEW MSU STORAGE FACILITY — Dr. James T. ## Students To Be Speakers At MSU Commencement

Outstanding seniors Rebecca Christina Myers of Mortons Gap and James H. Long, Jr., of Desloge, Mo., will be speakers for the 56th annual spring commencement exercises at Murray State University on Saturday, May 12.

They will share the podium with Dr. Constantine W. Curris, university president, in ceremonies to begin at 10 a.m. in the university fieldhouse. Both mid-year and spring graduates awarded degrees by Curris.

Miss Myers and Long will be formally recognized as the Outstanding Senior Woman and Man in the Honors Day Program on Friday afternoon, May 11.

Dr. Richard Butwell, vice-president for academic programs, said their selection to appear with Curris on the graduation program is in keeping with an effort to make commencement this spring "a more student-centered" program.

He noted that the university administration, the commencement committee, and the Student Government Association agree that it is appropriate for commencement, a ceremony to honor students, to have more direct involvement by students.

Others to participate on the program include the Rev. Mr. Steve Davenport, vicar of St. John's Episcopal Church and United Campus Ministry staff member, who will give the invocation and benediction, and the 38-piece Wind Sinfonietta conducted by Paul W.

Shahan, which will play the processional and recessional and provide special music.

Miss Myers will be graduated with a perfect 4.00 academic standing and share recognition as the top student academically in the class. The 21-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Myers of Mortons Gap has an area in accounting and a major in French.

Long, 22, will be graduated cum laude. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Long, Sr., of Desloge, Mo., and has a double major in biology and chemistry.

They were chosen as the outstanding seniors by a faculty-student-staff committee from students named to "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges."

Derby Breakfast Attended By Many Gubernatorial Candidates

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — A bright sun and chilly temperatures greeted early arrivals today for the traditional Kentucky Derby breakfast.

The first guests from the Frankfort area began arriving about 7 a.m. for the last breakfast in Gov. Julian Carroll's administration.

Because of the large number invited, the guests were served at four different times.

Several gubernatorial candidates were among political personalities arriving with the later groups.

The governor invited about 9,000 to the annual breakfast served under a large blue and white tent next to the executive mansion.

Gov. and Mrs. Carroll stood just inside the tent entrance to greet everyone. At noon, the windup, the governor's party planned to drive to Churchill Downs in Louisville for the big race.

The breakfast tradition began when then-Gov. and Mrs. A.B. Chandler invited about 100 friends in 1936. They used to pay for the festivities.

Later administrations began the practice of relying on the vast amount of food and sometimes services from vendors who did business with the state.

"The (breakfast) has grown and expanded beyond any idea we ever had," Chandler commented. "I sure like it, though. It's a great day for Kentucky."

The breakfast also has become something of a political sideshow, especially every four years when the gubernatorial races are held.

However, among those not expected today were two anti-administration candidates — former Republican Gov. Louie Nunn and Congressman Carroll Hubbard. They said they had other plans.

State Auditor George Atkins, also a severe critic, said he never was invited, but the administration declared this was a mistake and sent him another of the invitations, which depict a row of horses — unlike last year's version which prominently displayed Carroll.

The politics never gets down to speechmaking, merely making the rounds, shaking hands and commenting to news media.

Carroll's aides have been using the invitation list drawn up by the prior administration of Wendell Ford, now a U.S. senator, and adding to it.

Those invited included legislators, local officials and supporters of the administration from throughout the state. The administration checks on suggested new guests to try not to let the list grow too much.

The traditional menu includes eggs, fried apples, grits, country ham, sausage, fruit juice, pastries and coffee, with vast quantities of the ingredients trucked in and prepared well before dawn.

Annual Honors Day Set Friday

Honors Day at Murray State University — a program each spring to recognize students who have distinguished themselves by academic achievement and leadership — is scheduled at 3:30 p.m. Friday, May 11, in Lovett Auditorium.

Individual presentations of grants, cash awards, certificates, and citations will be made by the university and by various campus scholastic and honorary organizations to 139 students.

An additional 328 students will be recognized in the program for the accomplishment of meeting the membership standards of various campus honor societies.

Dr. Richard Butwell, vice-president for academic programs, emphasized that all parents and friends are invited to attend the program, which has been scheduled for the first time on the eve of commencement.

He noted that the change in the date from past years for Honors Day was made for two primary reasons — to schedule the two most important academic activities of the year on the same weekend and to make it more convenient for parents to attend.

Martha Boles of Madisonville, a senior and 1978-79 Student Government Association president, will preside during the honors program. Sherry Bugg, Wingo Route 2 senior, will deliver the invocation.

Dr. Constantine W. Curris, university president, will welcome guests to the campus, and Butwell will introduce the academic deans. The deans will preside as representatives of each undergraduate college make presentations.

Among students to be recognized are the outstanding senior woman and man, outstanding student in various academic departments and honor societies based on scholarship, and students named to "Who's Who Among

Students in American Universities and Colleges."

The 20-piece Brass Choir, a student group conducted by John Hancock, instructor of music, will provide music for the program.

A reception in Eagle Gallery on the fourth floor of the Price Doyle Fine Arts Center will follow the program.

The Wages Of Thin...

DEAR ABBY: I have twin daughters, 18, who are driving me crazy. They are obsessed with being thin. They were always a little on the plump side until two years ago when they decided they wanted to be as thin as fashion models. They dieted themselves down to skin and bones.

Now they eat whatever they want—and force themselves to upchuck afterwards. They also take a lot of laxatives to stay thin.

I've tried to tell them that they are ruining their health but they won't listen to me. They think they look wonderful, but they look sick to me.

I am worried about them, Abby. What should I do?

WORRIED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Get your daughters to a doctor! They could be suffering from "anorexia nervosa" (self-starvation). Your physician will probably recommend psychotherapy for the girls, as this condition involves psychological as well as physical problems. I urge you to act at once. They can be helped, but they can't do it alone.

DEAR ABBY: I've read your column for years and respect your advice.

I just learned that our 19-year-old daughter, a junior in college, bought birth control pills. I am distressed and shocked and wouldn't have believed it if I didn't have the facts.

She will be home in a few weeks. Please tell me how to handle this.

I can't give you my address because my husband opens the mail first. I haven't told him. He'd be heartbroken.

I hope to read your answer in your column.

HEARTSICK

DEAR HEARTSICK: I can understand your disappointment, but there is nothing to handle now. Apparently your daughter is either considering having sex or she's already into it. However, she's over 18 and it's her decision. In any case, be grateful that your daughter is protecting herself against accidental pregnancy.

As for your husband's reaction, would he be less heartbroken to learn that his college daughter was pregnant instead of on the pill?

DEAR ABBY: A friend and I were recently discussing pickups. Do you think it is all right for a woman (age 25) who is waiting for a bus to accept a ride from an attractive, polite man on a rainy evening?

I have always felt that if a woman accepts a ride with a stranger, he might get the idea that she was a pickup. My friend says that anyone could tell by just looking at me that I am not the type, so it would be all right to accept the ride. What do you think?

DINAH IN LINCOLN

DEAR DINAH: Anyone who thinks he or she can tell anything about a person just by looking should think again. No sensible woman gets into an automobile with a strange man regardless of how "attractive and polite" he appears to be. And a man who picks up a stranger also is taking a big chance.

DEAR ABBY: You said recently that studies on love-making revealed that the average American couple spent from 10 to 16 per minutes per act.

My husband related this information to his boss who commented, "Not me. I spend one minute on the act, and 29 minutes apologizing."

EVIE IN BELLEVUE, WASH.

Pottertown Homemakers Club Hears Lessons At Luncheon Meet

Louise Short presided at the April 11th meeting of the Pottertown Homemakers Club held at the Colonial House Smorgasbord.

The devotional leader, Lurene Cooper, read the scripture from Matthew 10:42 and 25:35-40 and two readings, "Are You A Neighbor?" and "A Woman's Name." Shirley Werts, secretary, gave her report.

Patye Overcast handed out leaflets on the lesson subject, "Repairing and Updating Interior Walls."

"Birth Defects" was discussed by Louise Short who gave health tips on how one can prevent these problems and how important immunization can help control various diseases and serious defects.

Dolores Zinkovich reported on "Consumers Beware" saying that if one sees that a store price is extremely high and if a product doesn't meet standard quality, there is a hot line one can call, 1-800-372-2960, Attorney General of Consumer's Protection Union.

Group singing was led by Lurene Cooper and Louise Short, and games were led by Dorothy Simon.

Announcements were made of the Kentucky Extension Homemakers Association meeting May 16-18 at the University of Kentucky, Lexington, and of the Southern Kitchen Cooking School on May 22 at 7 p.m. at the Lovett Auditorium, Murray State University.

Others present were Gussie Adams, Katie Overcast, Mildred Thompson, Ruth Tucker, Lois Smith, and Ruth Weston.

The club will meet Wednesday, May 9, at 10 a.m. at the Colonial House with lessons to be on "Know Your Homeowners Insurance" by Mary Gertzen, "Martial Enrichment For All Ages" by Reba Jo Roberts, "Safeguard Your Home" by Dolores Zinkovich, and "Flower Pot Covers" by Rosina Zimmerman.

HEALTH

Early exam is important

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Recently I developed a slight discomfort in the stomach and abdomen accompanied by a change in bowel movement pattern. My stools were smaller and often watery.

A sigmoidoscopic examination and a barium enema X ray of the colon showed no internal growth or polyps.

My doctor's diagnosis was spasm of the colon with diverticula. I was advised to take Metamucil and if this does not correct the condition, he will prescribe some form of belladonna.

As I understand it, I have diverticulitis. What exactly causes this condition and is it apt to recur? Also can this condition develop into something more serious, such as a tumor or growth requiring a colectomy?

DEAR READER — Let me congratulate you on having the good sense to go see a doctor. Anyone who develops a persistent unexplained change in his or her bowel habit pattern should go see a doctor at once. That can be the first sign of cancer of the colon.

We really don't hear much about it and I suppose it's because people are reluctant to discuss it. But cancer of the colon is the second most common cause of cancer deaths in both men and women. Most of these, if they are found early enough, can be cured. The problem is that most of them are not found until they have already spread to other parts of the body.

I can't stress too strongly to all of my readers the importance of having an early examination if they have any sudden change in bowel movements that's not explained or any unexplained bleeding from the rectum.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 5-6, Diverticulosis. It will give you a great deal more detail than I can here about this problem of pockets of the colon. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

We really don't know what causes those little pockets to develop on the colon. Each one is like a small appendix. Most authorities think that they are ruptures. The muscular wall of the colon separates or tears and the inner lining of the colon literally ruptures through the tear to form the pocket. The most common cause of the rupture is believed to be poor colon function — usually spasms of the colon as your doctor has diagnosed. The area above the spasm is stretched like a balloon and it's this recurrent stretching process that ends up in the rupture and the little pocket called a diverticulum.

Once they've developed, they're probably going to stay there. You can help prevent symptoms and problems by proper bowel management.

Metamucil is simply a bulk laxative. It is a substance which is not absorbed but merely swells to provide bulk in the colon. It's all right but there are many other bulk preparations as well.

In addition, the best bulk of all is nature's bulk — cereal fiber. That comes from whole wheat cereals, bran and real whole wheat bread. I say real because a lot of the so-called whole wheat bread marketed contains large amounts of refined or white flour in which the bran has been removed.

There's more to the whole problem than simply adding bulk to the diet. You will probably need to train your normal bowel reflexes which is discussed in The Health Letter I'm sending you.

They have another son, Christopher, 9, and one daughter, Jennifer, 7. The father is employed at the General Tire and Rubber Company, Mayfield.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Moore of Benton Route 2 and Mr. and Mrs. Vernon G. Baker of Hardin Route 1. A great grandmother is Mrs. Lola Johnson of Benton Route 5.

She is a junior at Heath High School and has attended the state FHA convention each year since she joined as a freshman. Miss Hurt said she was very excited to be able to represent her school and the state. "FHA means a lot to me and I have grown a lot from experiences with it. FHA is for anybody who wants to be a future homemaker. It's for boys, also, because nowadays they have to work in the home, also. But aside from homemaking, FHA has given me leadership and knowledge I'll be able to use no matter what career I chose. It can help everybody that way," Miss Hurt said. The new state president is active in other activities of her school. Other state officers from Western Kentucky were Kathryn Gray, Caldwell County High School, Princeton, historian, and Karon Walker, Calloway County High School, recreation leader. Area state scholarship winners were Rhonda L. Barrett, Lyon County, and Dana Mansfield, Murray High School.

'Fear On Faith' Subject Of Article By Mrs. Russell

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following column was written by Grace Russell of Dyersburg, Tenn. Her column appears in several newspapers near her hometown. Mrs. Russell was a recent speaker before local United Methodist Women and we feel this column will have interest locally.)

How can you really be patient when you're in such a hurry? How can you be kind when your feelings are hurt? How can you have courage when you're so afraid?

Among the facts of life is the constant struggle between fear and faith within us. It seems that fear has the media on its side.

If we aren't plagued with fears of higher gas prices and insurmountable inflation, the everpresent bogey men of death and taxes leer at us from life's darkened corners to keep us on our toes. And they are multiplied by the fear filled newscasts covering events over which we have absolutely no control.

Fear is a terribly heavy burden to carry. It weighs us down until progress is practically impossible.

Only one thing is strong enough to conquer fear and that is faith. Faith in ourselves and our own abilities may carry us far, but beyond faith in ourselves we need faith in God.

Felix Holt Remembered By Local, Writer

By KIRBY JENNINGS

The story in a recent Murray Ledger & Times written by Alf F. Walle from research material obtained from King Library, University of Kentucky, opened a floodgate of memories which has prompted me to reply, not necessarily to find any fault whatsoever, but to add to, in addition to correcting some historical recordings before it is too late. Walle's story was delightful!

For 10 years I worked on the same paper, the Detroit Times, with Felix. During these years we had many dinners together and was a regular visitor with him and his wife Marjorie. Further, both of us worked the evening shift for about five years, previously he worked the court beat. The close friendship in Detroit was a natural as both of us had been in school together in Murray, and both of us were occasional visitors in the other's homes. To top it completely off, both of us simultaneously were trying to buy the old Jimmie Grogan ante-bellum home seven miles east of Murray while employed on the Times although neither was aware of the other's efforts despite our daily contacts. I believe the credentials are sufficient to support me in this effort.

In the second paragraph you quoted a portion of a paragraph from the Times "weighing 110 pounds when carrying a fifth of Old Fitzgerald." Wish it were possible to exactly reproduce the entire story, but that is too late as I have forgotten other details of what I said. But let's not try to resurrect that particular feature and settle with getting some of the other facts straightened out.

Knowing that light-hearted, mischief-making fellow as I did, it is understandable why he made light of his educational attainments. The New York Times was incorrect when it reported Felix's "schooling had ended in the eighth grade..." Will never forget the cartoon he drew of Prof. Jimmie Jones while Felix was in Murray High School, a sprightly drawing picturing the prof bent over peeping through a door. How far he did go in high school, I do not recall, but he was at least a sophomore or junior when he moved with his family to California to make temporary residence.

In researching the files for "The Story of Calloway County" I find that Felix entered the Civilian Military Training Corps for youths less than 21 years of age. When the family returned to Calloway County, the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Holt and perhaps the girls moved in the little house across the road from Stone School House. We renewed friendships and I occasionally spent the night there, especially at hickory nut gathering time. He did leave for good after returning home after the Armistice to work on numerous papers as a cartoonist, an art he had perfected since childhood but without any formal education as far as I can remember. From time to time I would hear of him, but it was in 1928 when our roads of friendship were to come together again.

While working as a Linotype operator, I looked up one evening and saw standing right in front of my machine, Felix. We fell all over one another, unaware of one another's presence on the Hearst newspaper. Thus a renewed friendship resulted and continued for years. Once again we became inseparable friends.

During the early years of renewal, Felix was a court reporter for the paper. I'll never forget his copy - it was awful. Invariably he requested that I should set his type up and correct his errors - and that was a full-time job.

When he had the occasion to be in the shop at the 10 p.m. lunch break, he would join me for lunch. We would race over to the Bungalow Sandwich Shop over on Grand Circus Park for a set-to. This was the hang-out for the Purple Gang members, all of whom were personally acquainted with Felix, from whom Felix would get tips from the underworld.

To leave the impression he did not know the gangsters of the Roaring 20's is not simply the facts of life. Felix knew as much about that gang as any fellow in Detroit. Even to this day I can remember some of the gang's names: Honey Boy Miller, Roy, Raymond, Isaac and Benny Bernstein. They were well-dressed mobsters and king bees of the alley brewery industry in Detroit. The article in your paper stated that Felix "wrote about gangsters he only knew dimly such as gangsters: he had been a big city reporter, it is true, but he was not Damon Runyon." Yes, Felix knew them well, broke bread with them, and spun jokes, to gain intimate knowledge of how the underworld operated.

The remark about Runyon prompts another observation. One evening, Felix asked me if I would like to meet Damon Runyon? Of course I jumped at the chance. Within a few days when Runyon was in town as a syndicated writer for the Hearst chain, Felix grabbed him and the three of us went to the Russian Bear Restaurant in a basement place I believe across from the Addison Hotel. The reason I so vividly recall this was a remark Damon made at the dining table after I had expressed a desire of some day becoming a writer: "In all of my writing I never use a dirty word for it never enhances your writing but may offend one of your readers." Damon advised I have erased thousands of words in original copy because of his thoughtful observation.

Your story stated "Felix Holt was an unimpressive reporter..." On the contrary, he was the most striking and unforgettable figure I have ever known. His physical features and his quaint name left an impressionable image on any person being interviewed - an immense asset for any reporter. Felix scarcely tipped the scales at 98 pounds, bald as a winter turnip, and maintained a perpetual grin that reached to a pair of unforgettable ears that became animated when he was engrossed in heated argument. Once you met him, you never forgot him - he was supreme.

At the time of our tenure on the Times, Mahatma Gandhi of India was the No. 1 international sensation in his passive resistance campaign to shake the British yoke off Mother India. He was a dead wringer for Felix. At a hilarious Christmas party editorial office members presented him with a huge staff and a bed sheet. I had nothing to do with it, however Felix became highly infuriated and gave a generally good cussing to the whole outfit, despite the fact all of us had been calling him "Mahatma" for several years.

That was the first time I became aware Felix was physically breaking. Frankly, Felix was hitting the jug far too much in addition to being a chain cigarette smoker. Between two of his weaknesses and being hard pressed as a court reporter in Judge Jeffries circuit court, Felix went completely off the handle and caused an altercation in Judge Jeffries in court. Because of the drinking habit the staff at the Times had re-assigned him to the court beat after several years as make-up editor. Instead of being held in contempt of court, Felix was placed under a doctor's care for about a month if I recall correctly. At that time he severed relations with the newspaper and began filling in as a script writer for the Lone Ranger on Radio Station WXYZ.

Previous to Felix's breakdown, we talked about returning to Murray to enter the newspaper business. I explained that I did not have sufficient background to be a writer and I was going back to school and suggested he do likewise. Felix scoffed at the idea of additional education at our age. While attending Highland Park Junior College I would often have lunch with the Hols at their apartment at Third and Glendale Avenue. Felix declared he was going back to Murray some day to write and run a country newspaper and say the things he wanted to say unrestrained. During one of the luncheons he remarked he had bought the old Jimmy Grogan homestead and was having his brother-in-law Sam Robinson re-work it. I nearly fell over for it was the place I, too, was trying to buy. He promised me if he ever sold it, he would deliver the deed should he and Marjorie change their minds.

Felix's accomplishments were nominal on the radio station, but was showing more promise by the hour as he regained his health. In the meantime, I moved over to Ann Arbor to spend a few years in school and lost track of Felix in the meantime.

Felix learned of my Murray whereabouts after he had moved to Bucks County, Pennsylvania, and our correspondence began anew. He urged me to come up there and join him in script writing as he was becoming quite successful with his running CBS serial "Cimmerian Tavern." He painted a beautiful picture, but I knew my limitations. In addition, I wanted to start a family and didn't intend to rear them in Pennsylvania. Also I had high hopes of a political future after acquiring an educational background on the science. But that's another story that never materialized, for I soon learned that to be a successful politician you had to possess a measure of hypocrisy and deceit to climb the ladder.

Felix forwarded a manuscript copy of his "The Gabriel's Horn" for a review. My response was discouraging for I saw no hope for it with all of its dirty words. He got mad as all get-out. After the "Horn" proved a nation-wide success, he wrote me a scathing letter on my earlier judgment. I was wrong as could be. Incidentally, Felix told me later his royalties from the book proved highly disappointing and that he was in need of cash and inquired if I still wanted his Jimmy Grogan place. Felix's second book, "Dan'l Boone Kissed Me" was a flop. With the failure he wrote again urging me to buy his place. I did and for a song.

Echoes From The Past

(A Column of historical and genealogical anecdotes, stories and family notes.)

Boundary Dispute

Have you ever wondered why the Kentucky state line, bordering on Tennessee has such a jog in it, just east of the Jackson Purchase? There is a story that has gone around for many years about that one little jog over near the Christian County line, and a farmer whose farm was in Kentucky, but who was threatened with annexation to Tennessee. The story goes that when the surveyors came through his farm, the crafty farmer, who did a little moonshining on the side, set jugs of his best under trees along the border of his land, just far enough apart to keep the surveyors moving in the right direction. As a result, his farm, that little hump in Kentucky's border, remained within the state.

The Kentucky-Tennessee border dispute began in the late 1790's, when the original states of North Carolina and Virginia couldn't see eye-to-eye on just where the border should be. The original survey, done about 1780, was the work of Dr. Thomas Walker; this was later known as the Walker line, and was accepted by Virginia legislature, but not by North Carolina.

By 1790, North Carolina had agreed to recognize this line, but by this time, North Carolina had agreed to give over its western territory to the United States. This resulted in the creation of Tennessee - and Tennessee didn't agree with the boundary decision. This dispute continued until 1819.

With the creation of the Jackson Purchase, in 1819, two surveyors were appointed to re-survey the dividing line between the two states as far as the Mississippi River.

The Walker line had reached as far as the Cumberland River, and when the other survey was finished, it was seen that the Walker line was about 15 miles or so north, by river, of the 36 deg. 30' line that had been established by Luke Munsell, the second surveyor.

A new agreement, to use the term loosely, was reached, providing for acceptance of the Walker line as far as the Tennessee River and the Munsell line as far as the Mississippi River. To further complicate things, although the unappropriated land in this area (the Jackson Purchase) would be put at Kentucky's disposal, Tennessee would be given political control over the same area. Kentucky proceeded to begin selling land at $20 per hundred acres, a price that was later cut in half.

In 1827, still not satisfied with the Walker line, someone (probably in Washington) proposed a new survey as far as the Tennessee River, where the Munsell line took over. Understandably enough, people in this part of the country were getting very confused, not clear from one day to the next what state they would find themselves in.

The resulting survey was approved by Tennessee, but Kentucky didn't like it, so the debate was still not settled.

In 1858, another attempt was made to come up with an acceptable state line. This group, made of two commissioners from each state, concurred that all the old surveys were invalid, and they came up with a brand new line. Evidently this one was agreeable to all, because in 1860, both Kentucky and Tennessee accepted it.

The result of this final survey meant that Kentucky lost a strip of land between the 36 deg. 30' parallel and the old Walker line. But it must have been some consolation for the people who lived in this area, much of which was between the Tennessee and Cumberland Rivers, to know, at last and with some degree of certainty, what state they lived in.

Supports Lee Bolen

Dear Editor:

This letter is in regard to our forth coming election of people to run our city government for the next two years of which I am very much concerned about, and I do not vote for people without knowing something about them, their character and especially how they get along with their fellow workers.

I am referring to one candidate who has never been a councilman but he has worked for the city as a supervisor of the sanitation and street departments. I have worked for several hours talking to different people concerning Mr. Lee Bolen, who is a resident of 1517 Kirkwood Drive.

In my investigation I have not talked to a single person that has not spoke very highly of him and some of them went so far as to tell of the things he did for the city during the time he served as supervisor that I did not know about due to my being a shut in with rheumatoid arthritis.

After my investigation of Mr. Bolen and finding out the type of man I believe him to be I sincerely hope that people will read the investigation I am enclosing herewith and vote not according to numbers on the ballot but vote for the man with some experience of the city of Murray needs. I truly recommend that the people will see fit to vote for him on May 29th, 1979.

Hoping you can make it possible to print this letter along with my investigation, I remain

Respectfully Submitted,

Brass Lantern Selected For Travel Guide

AURORA, KY — The Brass Lantern Restaurant has been listed in the 1979 edition of the MOBIL TRAVEL GUIDE, one of the finest travel guidebooks available. This announcement was made today by Dick Thomas who owns and operates The Brass Lantern with his wife Carol.

Each of the seven regional editions provides valuable information on local history, sightseeing, amusements, sports, and recreation facilities, in addition to the star-rated food and lodging listings. Also included are regional road atlases and detailed maps of major cities, special auto-tour routes, and helpful advice to travelers.

The 1979 MOBIL TRAVEL GUIDE books are available at Mobil service stations, bookstores, magazine outlets, and other places where books and magazines are sold.

Mr. Thomas notes that both of the four-star rated restaurants, and most of the twelve, three-star rated restaurants are members of the Kentucky Restaurant

Keenland Pleased With Computerization

Keenland Race Course, Lexington, which ended its 15-day spring meeting last Friday, apparently is pleased with its new computerized system of betting, dubbed all betting and cashing (ABC).

"We've had a good experience with it," said James Williams, the track's publicity director. He said naturally there was an adjustment period, but "most of the reaction now is very favorable."

As ABC implies, betting and cashing can be done at all mutual windows. Any type of wager (win, place, show or the Daily Double, Perfecta, Exacta, etc.) for any amount can be placed at any mutual. The ABC system eliminates the need for separate windows for different types of bets. You can bet any rounded-dollar amount ranging from $2 to $250 on one bet - $3, $4, $7 or whatever you care to wager.

One man at Keenland last Thursday saw fit to wager $33,000 on Spectacular Bid in the running of the Blue Grass Stakes; his ticket, or tickets rather, of course paid off.

Carroll Delatte, head of mutuels at Keenland, noted that the $33,000 wager required 33 tickets; under the old system, the bet would have taken 660 tickets.

Delatte says of the system: "It's a very convenient way of betting; it's so much more efficient."

Industry officials believe ABC will result in higher per capita betting because the better, when confronted with the option of betting any amount, will have a tendency to bet higher.

Per capita betting did in fact increase at the Fair Grounds in New Orleans and Florida's Gulfstream Park, the first two thoroughbred tracks in the U.S. to install ABC.

Williams said mutual play at Keenland was way down after the first three or four days of the spring meeting, but he said the bad weather was more of a factor than the new betting system.

He said for the entire spring meet, betting will come close to last spring's record amount.

As for Churchill Downs in Louisville, the ABC system presents some hazards, mainly because of the Kentucky Derby, says Lynn Stone, president of Churchill Downs. The track's main problem would be in training the 800 or so clerks hired just for Derby Day. Under the present system, they use relatively simple equipment and handle mostly small bets; with ABC, they would be using sophisticated equipment and handling bets that could range into the hundreds and thousands of dollars.

Still, Stone says of ABC: "It's the coming thing; we'll get to it in due time."

Local Exterminator Attends Tree Seminar

Rosebud Sykes of Kelley's Termite and Pest Control of Murray recently attended a tree seminar in Nashville.

The seminar, sponsored by the J.J. Mauget Company, featured professional arborists, ground managers and tree care specialists from Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi, Arkansas and Alabama.

Topics of discussion included treatment of iron and zinc deficiencies, tree nutrition, control of insects and tree injection techniques. Those in attendance injected trees with Mauget capsules and feeder tubes.

Tree injection is a new concept that places protective chemicals and nutrients into the sap stream of the tree. It is environmentally safe because no unwanted material is permitted to enter the environment.

The Mauget Tree Injection Process permits a professional arborist to treat trees in difficult to care areas. Insect problems and elemental deficiencies can be corrected with capsules of Mauget products.

We've Come A Long Way

In 1776, the life insurance "industry" in the U.S. consisted of two companies, one in Philadelphia writing insurance on the lives of Presbyterian ministers and the other in New York serving Episcopal ministers and their families. All told, fewer than 100 persons were insured.

Today two out of three Americans have some form of life insurance protection, and the number of companies has grown to 1,750, the American Council of Life Insurance reports. Total life insurance assets top $389 billion and are invested in a "diversified" economy where they contribute to the nation's economic growth.

The average amount of insurance protection for each insured family in the U.S. totaled an estimated $39,500 in 1978, up from $36,900 a year earlier. And new purchases of life insurance last year were an estimated $406.1 billion.

MR. AND MRS. JOE SLEDD are pictured as they boarded the "Fun Ship" TSS Festiva in Miami, Fla., for a Caribbean cruise to Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands. They went by airplane to Miami, Fla., leaving April 21 and arriving home April 28. The couple won the trip because of high sales with the Great Central Insurance Company. They operate the Joe Sledd Insurance Agency, 522 Main Street, Murray.

Jackie Weatherford and Sharon Carlisle of Farlands Travel Agency

Sharon Carlisle, manager of Far LANDS Travel Agency, announced recently that the agency had received its Air Traffic Conference appointment. With the ATC appointment, the agency now has ticket stock and airplane plates. This allows the agency to issue tickets for air transportation on any airline within the United States.

The Murray Office, located in the White House building at 711 Main Street, opened in June of 1977. Prior to the ATC appointment all local airline tickets had to come from the main office in Mayfield, delaying the purchasing of airline tickets by Murray travelers for two days. NOW, Murray residents can make reservations, and purchase tickets all in the same day.

With the new low domestic and international air fares, more people are traveling now than ever before. The public always eager to save money realizes that now is the time to visit those far way places once thought out of reach of every day people.

"Far Lands Travel is proud to be able to offer same day ticketing along with all the other services that we offer the traveling public of Calloway and surrounding counties. As always there is no charge for our services," Carlisle stated.

FOUR WHEELING The Real Cost Of Fire Wood

In these days of energy costly America many of us are prone to make moves for the sake of economy that don't bear the best of fruits. In our reading recently, we came across a story that well illustrates this point, and have adopted it with some local changes for your consideration.

You're tired of high electric bills, right? And the way to get around that you've been told, is to install a wood burning stove? As the country store observer said from his seat on the nail keg, wood is "something that don't cost nothing!" Don't be so sure.

Here's one supposed record. Installing wood stove, stove, pipe, all fittings, and modifications to house - $79.40.

Service calls to repair leak around place pipe goes thru roof - $76.00.

Chain saw (first one) - $129.95.

Chain saw (second one. Reflects $25 trade in on first) - $279.95.

Four wheel drive truck to haul wood with - $9,458.00.

Body work (repair truck after tree fell on it) - $1,749.00.

Service and maintaining of chain saws, plus accessories for woodcutting - $143.00.

Log splitter - $179.00.

Wrecker fee to pull truck out of gully - $50.00.

Repair work done on four wheel drive truck (replace broken back window, add new springs to rear, replace tailgate, new chrome) - $567.00.

Doctor's bill (remove sawdust from eye) - $40.00.

Goggles to wear when sawing wood - $12.50.

Court charges for cutting wood on State property in nondesignated area - $534.00.

Fourteen cases "suds" - $126.00.

Fine for littering public property - $60.00.

Medical examination for pulled back muscles - $2,430.00.

Visit to emergency room for attention to broken toe where log fell on it and repairs to leg - $240.00.

Steeltoed safety shoes - $59.50.

Smoke damage to house (replace curtains, repaint walls and ceilings, install new carpet) - $435.00.

Twenty acres woodland in county on deserted gravel road - $12,000.00.

Repairs to road - $420.00.

where cain saw touched it - $340.00.

Replace porch railing and repair wall of house where truck backed into it - $388.00.

Divorce proceedings including cost of lawyer, delivering his firewood for winter, and final settlement - $43,589.00.

TOTAL COST for first year - $73,645.30.

"Savings" in electricity over previous year - $78.47.

Fishing Line

Fishing conditions have changed a lot this past week as some of you know. The lake level had almost reached summer pool when the heavy rainfall caused flooding again. Now the lakes are on the rise at a rapid rate, trapping the muddy runoff in the coves.

Black bass had really tempting to leave alone. Most of the time, a worm will produce twice the number of strikes of any other lure you use. Gary and Brenda Marquardt did real well Wednesday. They caught several bass, sauger, and one or two crappie. Brenda set a new record for herself by landing a five pound four ounce largemouth. Way to go Brenda!

The crappie are still trying to feed in the brush and treetops but they are scattered. If we could get a few days of sunshine and calm, stable water these fish would really turn on.

They haven't spawned yet because of foul weather and low water temperature. So hang in there, we may be able to get a run going.

If you crappie fish at all, you know most of the basics in fishing around brush. Where a lot of people fail to produce crappie or any fish for that matter, is in anchoring a boat in an area that looks good but doesn't have the structure to hold fish all day. There are millions of places to fish so why set in a spot when you are not producing. Move around some, try different depths, cast a few times with a jig and locate a school of holding fish, then drop anchor and work them over.

If the desire is there the extra work will be worth it.

Zebco Introduces New Fiberglass Rod Series

TULSA, OK. — A new line of eight custom-styled tubular fiberglass fishing rods will be offered this year by Zebco, the folks you fish with.

Called the Horizon series, it includes four each in spin-cast and spinning models, ranging from ultra-light to worm action.

The new rods — silver and black with gold accents — boast unique triple wraps throughout, with pin stripping. The new, naturally-shaped rods have excellent strength and tip action, uniform flex and overall lightness. All two-piece models have glass-to-glass ferrules.

All feature extra-tough chrome-plated steel wire-frame line guides. Spinning models have anodized aluminum reel seats, with double-locking rings to keep reels in place, and hand-fitting, easy-grip handles.

Spin-cast models have pistol grips which are pebble-grained for firmer holding. Backed by 30 years of quality and leadership in the tackle industry, the new rods are perfectly balanced for Zebco's new line of Omega spinning and spin-cast reels.

'Feel Free' To Cook Your Catch

With the rising cost of beef and concern for its cholesterol levels, millions of Americans are including more fish in their weekly menu plans. During National Fishing Week, May 14-20, the 63 million Americans who fish, the giant industries that supply fresh and frozen fish to consumers and all who simply love to eat fish are being saluted. The theme of the week, "Fish 'N Feel Free," captures the spirit of fishing... light, easy and "outdoorsy."

In the "Fish 'N Feel Free" spirit, the following basics of fish cookery — outdoors or indoors — apply to all types of fish whether caught in a babbling brook or salty deep.

COOKING YOUR CATCH...
...Afield
Aluminum Foil Baking
Place fillets or small, cleaned fish on a piece of aluminum foil. Spring the fish with seasonings of your choice... salt, pepper, lemon juice, etc. Add butter or bacon to enhance the flavor. Seal fish and other contents securely in the foil and place the package on the coals. In about 20 minutes, test for doneness. Be careful removing the package from the fire, and avoid puncturing the foil.

Campfire Panfrying
This method is a simple, classic technique for cooking fish outdoors. If you have a grill, set it flat across, and above the flame. If no grill is available, place the pan as flat as possible over the fire using rocks as props to support the pan on a level several inches above the flame. Cast iron pans are best, but aluminum pans will do the job. Because fish flesh is delicate in texture, it needs some protection in the frying process. You can use corn meal, cracker crumbs, flour or fine bread crumbs as a base to which you add seasoning—Salt, pepper and, if you like a pinch of dried basil. Dip the fillets in milk or water, shake off excess and drop them into a plastic bag or brown paper bag containing the seasoned crumbs. Shake well until fillets are coated. Melt butter in pan and when it begins to sizzle, place fillets or small, gutted fish into pan. Flip fish only as often as necessary to assure doneness. Turning too often can break up the fish. Fish is ready when it flakes easily at the touch of a fork.

...At Home
Baking Your Catch
Take fillets or whole fish, with skin still on, and place in baking dish. You may wish to fill the fish with your favorite stuffing. This method of cooking should be performed in a 350 to 375-degree oven for 45 minutes or until nicely browned. Leaner fish, if they are to be prepared by baking, should be braised, that is, baked in a bouillon or other stock to help retain moisture and flavor.

Can't Catch Fish

Try A Trotline

My situation last weekend was sort of an "out of the fire, into the frying pan" affair. The week before I'd been bragging to my father about how I was going to tear the fish up this spring, one of those no sweat, no mercy types of bull sessions.

"Well, we're supposed to come up to your house Sunday afternoon for dinner. Why don't we have a good mess of fresh fish?" he asked.

I did a double take but realized I'd gotten myself in too deep. "Er, uh, sure we'll have fish. I think I'll have time to get out a time or two-between now and then."

And you can believe I was out the next afternoon. The water was rising fast and over the summer pool mark into the trees. I bobbed around the backs of a few pockets, but my net yield was zero.

So was the yield of the next trip. "Better plan on something beside fish for Sunday," I told my wife, and I got ready to swallow some pride.

The third trip produced a couple of nice crappies, but certainly not enough to feed eight hungry appetites.

But then I got an idea: I'd been hearing rumors about catfish being in shallow water, and a call to a local tackle store operator confirmed the report. "Wouldn't be just your ticket," he answered, and it wasn't long before I was in his store buying a pre-tied 20 hook line and a couple of boxes of nightcrawlers.

"Tie your line between some trees along a shallow bank," the man suggested, and that's what I did. I got help from my neighbor, George Lynn, and we strung the line just at dusk on Friday.

The next morning I was turkey hunting at Land Between the Lakes. I kept thinking about the trotline, wondering if it would save my reputation. If my fishing luck wasn't any better than my turkey effort, I'd be eating ground beef for days to come.

But I needn't have worried. When I got home Mr. Lynn had run the line, and seven fat catfish were waiting for me in his live box. Four of the fish were good size. And of the other thirteen hooks that didn't have fish, all were baitless. A couple of drops were broken off by what must have been big cats and another hook was bent almost double by a fish that got off.

Trotlining isn't exactly a glamorous way to fish, but it is productive. A baited line does the work while you're gone, and a quick check and rebaiting job is often all the effort necessary to provide the essentials of a catfish dinner.

So the moral of the story is this: if you talk too much and have to get fish, or if you're just hungry for a plate of catfish, fries and hushpuppies, consider setting a trotline! For the amount of effort involved, they may just be the most productive method of fishing around.

(Post script — My wife took me at my word and cooked something other than fish for the big feast. Daddy came in and promptly judged that he couldn't smell fish cooking. His chagrin turned to a smile when I presented him with a plastic bag of clean catfish for the trip back home.)

Several important happenings for interested sportsmen are coming up.

Two carp tournaments for bowfishermen are in the offing the first weekend in May. The Paris (Tennessee) Rod and Gun Club is sponsoring its third annual bowfishing tournament May 5 and 6 at Paris Landing State Park. This is a pay tourney — $5 per person, and the heaviest one day total claims $100 first prize. Prizes will also be given for second and third places and for largest fish. Anybody interested in the tourney should show up.

registration at the Paris Landing State Park marina between 6-8 a.m. either day. Bowfishing will be allowed on Kentucky Lake and its tributaries between 8 a.m.-4 p.m. A Tennessee fishing license is required.

Also, May 4-6 are the dates for a "carporee" at Land Between the Lakes. Action starts at noon on the 4th and ends the 6th at 1 p.m. Entry is $4 (which includes camping fee), and trophies will be given in several divisions. Headquarters for the "carporee" are at Camp Energy in LBL's northern portion. For more information write to: Carporee Tournament, Land Between the Lakes, Golden Pond, Kentucky 42231.

A licensed field trial for retrievers is set for May 4-6 at the West Kentucky Wildlife Management Area west of Paducah. The event is sponsored by the Western Kentucky Retriever Club, and several of the nation's top dogs will be on hand to run a slate of tough courses.

If you've never been to a retriever field trial, various tests are set up in the different stakes, and all the dogs entered will run through the same test. The dogs are judged on their ability to complete the tests, and as the trial continues the less competent animals are eliminated. Things might seem slow and repetitious to a first time trial-goer, but if you seek out some explanation of what's happening from a more knowledgeable on-looker, you'll get a lot more enjoyment from your trip.

And let me add a note about field trial dogs in comparison to hunting dogs. Many hunters will tell you that Old Blackie's not one of those fancy field trial animals, but he's as good a hunting dog as the best of them. Many hunters who have no knowledge of experience in regards to field trailing have the misconception that a field trial dog isn't a good hunting companion.

Nothing could be further from the truth. The best field trial dog will be the best hunter. His degree of training is such that he'll perform retrieving feats that Old Blackie never thought of. Field trials are built around simulated hunting situations, and the tests in competition are very similar to the tests faced by a dog in a flooded bottom looking out over a spread of decoys.

Joe Pat Futrell, left, of Murray, and Gary Sires, of Hardin, made a successful trip to Missouri turkey hunting Saturday, April 28. Futrell called his gobbler after the gobbler was already with a hen by using a diaphragm call in his mouth and a slate call with his hands at the same time. This made the gobbler think there were two hens. Both the hen and gobbler came to his calling. Both Futrell and Sires killed their gobblers approximately one hour after entering the woods. Futrell has killed many turkeys in the LBL and is an expert turkey caller and hunter.

Erick Benson, Murray, had a good day Monday, April 30, when he came in with this 9 pound bass. Benson was fishing a white spinner bait, in shallow water, on Kentucky Lake at Rushing Creek.

Twins' Reliever Stops Tigers

Marshall A Savior Again

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

When the Minnesota Twins signed strongman Mike Marshall to a lucrative contract this year, they felt they were going to get their money's worth. And they were right.

To date, the Twins have 17 victories — and Marshall has had a hand in 13 of them.

Marshall gained his fourth triumph Friday night to go along with nine saves as the Twins defeated the Detroit Tigers 7-6. And he thinks he can keep doing it.

"If this team needs me to pitch more than 106 times, I'll do my best to give it to them," said Marshall, citing the figure that once helped him win the Cy Young Award with the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Asked if there was a limit his number of appearances this year, the well-traveled 36-year-old veteran said: "At this point, just the end of the season."

American League

Glenn Adams provided Marshall with his winning run when he hit a solo homer in the seventh. Ironically, Adams thought the ball was going to be caught and turned back toward the dugout.

"Carl (Kuehl, first base coach) was pale as a ghost when he saw me running back," said Adams. "He said to me, 'What are you doing?' I thought he was pulling my leg. I'll tell you — that was the longest 360 feet I ever saw."

In other American League games, the Kansas City Royals edged the Cleveland Indians 5-4 in 10 innings; the Boston Red Sox defeated the Seattle Mariners 5-3; the Chicago White Sox defeated the Texas Rangers 7-5 in the first game of a doubleheader before losing the nightcap 7-6; the Oakland A's whipped the New York Yankees 11-5 and the Toronto Blue Jays stopped the Milwaukee Brewers 5-4.

The California-Baltimore game was postponed by rain. Adams' blast came off Aurelio Lopez, 0-1. Marshall, who has appeared in seven of the Twins' last nine games, took over with one out and a man on third in the seventh inning and the Twins leading 6-5.

Pinch-hitter Jim Corcoran lofted a sacrifice fly to tie the game but Marshall held Detroit scoreless the rest of the way to raise his record to 4-1.

Royals 5, Indians 4

Hal McRae's sacrifice fly in the 10th inning scored Al Cowens, giving Kansas City reliever Al Hrabosky a tight victory over Cleveland.

Cowens led off the 10th with a single off Cleveland reliever Sid Monge, 1-2. He stole second and went to third as the throw by catcher Bo Diaz skipped into center field for an error. McRae followed with a high fly to left that scored the winning run.

Red Sox 5, Mariners 3

Fred Lynn drove in three runs with a homer and a sacrifice fly and Carl Yastrzemski broke a tie with his 388th career homer, powering Boston over Seattle.

The 39-year-old Yastrzemski also had a single in moving within six hits of 2,900 in his career.

White Sox 7-6, Rangers 5-7

Eric Soderholm cracked a two-run double as Chicago scored three runs in top of the ninth inning to beat Texas in the first game of their doubleheader. Sparky Lyle, the Rangers' relief ace, gave up a run-scoring single to Chet Lemon and a two-run double to Soderholm.

The Rangers came back to win the nightcap on Mike Jorgensen's two-run double in the ninth.

Spectacular Bid Is 3-5 Favorite

By the Associated Press
LOUISVILLE — Spectacular Bid was the 3-5 favorite while winless Great Redeemer was not the longest shot in the race in preliminary betting Friday at Churchill Downs for Saturday's Kentucky Derby.

Great Redeemer was listed at 50-1, with Shamgo, who has two victories but has not won in eight starts this year, was the outsider at 80-1.

The other odds were Flying Paster, 5-2; the entry of General Assembly and Sir Ivor Again, 7-1; Screen King, 7-1; Golden Art, 16-1; Lot o'Gold, 35-1, and King Celebrity 50-1.

There was $95,482 bet to win on Spectacular Bid and $42,208 wagered on Flying Paster. Only $1,973 was bet to win on Shamgo while $3,006 was bet on Great Redeemer.

A total of $198,353 was bet to win, $72,052 to place and $50,495 to show.

A Kentucky Winner?

Odds Say Today's Derby Champ Should Be

By the Associated Press
LOUISVILLE — Tradition says a Kentucky-bred will win today's Kentucky Derby. What else?

Well, a Kentucky-bred didn't win the Derby last year, but they have won 79 of the 104 previous runnings of the 3-year-old classic at Churchill Downs.

In this year's Derby, there were five Kentucky-breds — favored Spectacular Bid, Screen King, Lot o'Gold, Shamgo and King Celebrity. Flying Paster and Goldey Act were California-bred, while General Assembly was bred in Virginia. Sir Ivor Again hails from New York — which has never given the Derby a winner — and Great Redeemer came from Maryland.

Florida ranks second behind Kentucky in producing Derby winners with four — last year's winner Affirmed, Foolish Pleasure, Carry Back and Needles.

California and Tennessee each had three winners. Decidedly, Swaps and Morvich were born in California while Tennessee came up with Lord Murphy, Kingman and Typhoon II. New Jersey, Texas and Virginia produced two each.

Regret, the only filly ever to win the Derby, and Cavalcade came from New Jersey. Assault and Middleground came from Texas, and Reigh Count and Secretariat, the 1973 Triple Crown winner and sire of General Assembly, were bred in Virginia.

Maryland has produced only one winner, Kauai King. Dust Commander was Illinois' contribution, Kansas had Lawrin, Elwood came from Missouri, Wintergreen from Ohio and Spokane from Montana.

Three Derby winners weren't born in the United States. Northern Dancer was foaled in Canada and Tony Lee and Omar Khayyam were foaled in England. Cavalcade and Pensive are offsprings of mares bred to stallions in England and brought to the United States while the mares were carrying them.

Calumet Farm, whose Alydar finished second in the Derby last year, is the leading breeder with eight winners — Whirlaway, Pensive, Citation, Ponder, Hill Gail, Iron Liege, Tim Tam and Forward Pass.

John E. Madden, another Lexington, Ky., breeder, is next with five winners — Old Rosebud, Sir Barton, Paul Jones, Zev and Flying Ebony.

While his breeding was on his side, Spectacular Bid was seeking to become the only the third gray thoroughbred to capture the Derby. The others were Determine in 1954 and Decidedly in 1962.

Bay horses have won 51 times, chestnuts 33 times, browns 14 and blacks four.

Houston Open Is Still Struggling

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

HOUSTON — Officials of the $300,000 Houston Open — which has been hit by thieves, weakened by withdrawals, subjected to some mild controversy and delayed by torrential rains — tried again today to get in the second round of the hard-luck golf tournament.

multiple victories this year, Hubert Green, Tom Watson, Lanny Wadkins and Fuzzy Zoeller — all decided to skip this tournament.

Sharing the lead with Lietzke and Thompson after the first round were Jim Dent, Butch Baird and Jim Colbert. Rogers was one of a half-dozen men a single stroke off the pace at 67. There were 12 more at 68, leaving 23 men within two shots of each other in the chase for a $54,000 first prize which, for the time being at least, will not be accompanied by the traditional trophy.

OVC Baseball Tournament Is Finally Underway Today

MOREHEAD, Ky. — Murray State faced Austin Peay today at noon (CST) as the rain-marred Ohio Valley Conference tournament finally got underway, but not without its being revised.

The Morehead-Middle Tennessee clash followed at 3 p.m., with the two winners advancing to tomorrow's final, which will probably stray from the original schedule and be a single game, says Murray State Coach Johnny Reagan.

"I'm almost certain it be just one game tomorrow," Reagan said by phone this morning. The tourney was originally scheduled to be a double-elimination affair, but rain has postponed the event for the past two days.

Murray, the conference runnerup behind Morehead in regular season play, split two games with the Governors during the regular season. The 'Breds took three-of-four contests from Middle Tennessee but dropped a doubleheader at Morehead in the only meeting between the two teams.

The 'Breds starting hurler was likely southpaw Andy Rice, a five-game winner this season.

High-Round Hopefuls

Almond, Alabama's Rutledge Still Feel They Have Chance

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK — Alabama quarterback Jeff Rutledge was rated right up there with the best of them, while wide receiver Mike Almond of Northwestern Louisiana didn't even rate a mention.

Yet they shared the same sort of disappointing fate — and the same kind of hopeful outlook, too.

They were, in effect, mere afterthoughts in the National Football League draft, the annual flesh-peddling rite in which the top choice goes for millions of dollars and the lower grades generally wind up getting cut.

Rutledge is the latest in a line of Alabama quarterbacks which included Bart Starr, Joe Namath, Ken Stabler and Richard Todd. And according to the predraft scouting reports, Rutledge was considered just a shade behind Washington State's Jack Thompson and Clemson's Steve Fuller in ability.

Thompson and Fuller were drafted Thursday in the first round. Rutledge, who completed 30 touchdown passes during his career to break Namath's school record of 28, wasn't drafted until the ninth round Friday, when most of the names being read could just as well have come out of the local phone book with nobody being the wiser.

Almond, meanwhile, earned a dubious distinction. He was selection No. 330, the last man in the last round, picked by the Pittsburgh Steelers.

That could be his albatross, his millstone.

Being picked in the last few rounds usually means nothing more than a passing glance or two in training camp — but it means only one training camp until the team brings down the axe. Players who aren't drafted at all, though, have an advantage of sorts. They can try to sell themselves to as many teams as they want without restriction.

The 12-round draft took 17 hours, 13 minutes, with 168 offensive players, 150 defensive players and 12 specialists picked. Linebackers led the way with 54, starting with No. 1 selection Tom Cousineau of Ohio State by the Buffalo Bills. Oklahoma and Notre Dame had 10 players apiece drafted, followed by Penn State with nine. The Big Eight, with 34 players taken, led all conferences.

For the Rutledges, the Almonds and the rest of the low-round draftees, the future usually means an instant career out of pro football — although Starr, it must be noted, was a 10th-round pick by Green Bay.

They get none of the attention, the glory and the money which literally buries the top picks like Thompson (taken by Cincinnati), Cousineau, a linebacker, and the rest. Still, they smile in adversity and find reasons to be optimistic.

"Los Angeles is the only team in the NFL that had only two quarterbacks, Pat Haden and Vince Ferragamo," Rutledge said, "so I'll make the third one. If I'd gone anywhere else, I would've been the fourth or fifth quarterback. Besides, with LA I'm with a winner, just like I was with a winner at Alabama."

Spurs Take Eastern Opener; Phoenix Loses, Is Down 2-0

By the Associated Press
LANDOVER, Md. — San Antonio's James Silas said he could see a Spurs victory in the eyes of the Washington guards.

"It was in their faces," said Silas after the Spurs defeated the Bullets 118-97 Friday night in the opener of their National Basketball Association Eastern Conference championship series.

"They were so tight," he said. "They were so far out of it and that gave us confidence. We were all fired up because we knew (Elvin) Hayes couldn't do it all."

In Seattle, inept free-throw shooting doomed the Phoenix Suns to a 103-97 loss to the SuperSonics to give Seattle a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven Western Conference championship series.

"They were so tight," he said. "They were so far out of it and that gave us confidence. We were all fired up because we knew (Elvin) Hayes couldn't do it all."

they were having a difficult time.

"We knew they would go to Hayes and (Bob) Dandridge, so we doubled (coverage) there and left their guards free. But when they had a guard shooting, we had a man running at him."

Seattle 103, Phoenix 97

Normally a fine shooting team from both the floor and the foul line, the Suns hit just four of 10 free throws in the final seven minutes in Friday night's loss before Kingdome crowd of 31,964.

Games 3 and 4 are set for Sunday afternoon and Tuesday night in Phoenix.

Seattle, the defending conference champion, is shooting for a second straight appearance in the NBA finals.

"We can probably wrap it up (in Phoenix)," said Sonic power forward Lonnie Shelton, whose 18 points and game-high 15 rebounds highlighted a balanced Seattle performance at both ends of the court.

"If we can get one win we'll be happy," added Shelton, "but we'll be shooting for two."

A basket by Suns center Alvan Adams tied the rugged, seesaw game for the last time at 87 with 5:40 to play. Then Phoenix went cold at the line.

Walter Davis, an 83 percent free throw shooter, hit four of six foul shots down the stretch. Don Buse, a 77 percent foul shooter, missed four free throws in a row with the Suns behind 93-88.

"We had our opportunities," said Phoenix forward Truck Robinson, who made his first start in the Suns' 10 playoff games and responded with 20 points and nine rebounds in 35 minutes. "I thought we outplayed them as far as total play. The last couple minutes was the key."

"Missing all those free throws, you don't win that way."

In taking the opener of the best-of-seven conference championship series, the Spurs recorded their first victory in 10 outings at the Capital Centre since they joined the NBA three years ago.

Game Two is scheduled here Sunday.

Spurs Coach Doug Moe said he thought his team, after finishing an emotional seven-game series with Philadelphia Wednesday night, would have to struggle in the opening game. Instead, the Bullets had their difficulties after a five-day rest.

"After that seventh game, we said we wouldn't have a chance up here so we decided to slow it down to keep them from running," Moe said. "In the second half, we got our running game going when of guy is going to throw the hitters off. He was back to his old rhythm even though he had the lead."

The Expos made the night's work easy for Grimsley by staking him to a 6-0 lead in the first inning when they sent 10 men to the plate. Home runs by Carter and Andre Dawson, the seventh of the season for each, highlighted the inning.

Grimsley's Junk Is Too Big A Hunk For Padres

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Ross Grimsley has learned to make the most of what he's got.

"I wish I could throw a ball 100 miles an hour," says the 29-year-old left-hander of the Montreal Expos. "But I can't. If I'm going to win, I'm going to win my way. If people don't like it, I don't care. That's all I hear: how much junk I throw."

Grimsley's junk — fastball, curve, slider, changeup — was too much for the San Diego Padres Friday night. They managed just three hits as Montreal breezed to a 12-1 victory.

It was the eighth triumph in the last nine games for the Expos, 16-6, who lead Philadelphia by one game in the National League East.

In other NL games, the Cincinnati Reds edged the Houston Astros 6-5 in 10 innings, the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-2, the San Francisco Giants nipped the New York Mets 4-3, the St. Louis Cardinals triumphed the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3 and the Chicago Cubs defeated the Atlanta Braves 6-2.

Grimsley, who signed with Montreal as a free agent last season and proceeded to win 20 games, has picked up right where he left off. Friday night's victory raised his record to 3-0.

"Grimsley is a lot of fun to catch," said Montreal's Gary Carter. "He has such a repertoire of pitches. That type of guy is going to throw the hitters off. He was back to his old rhythm even though he had the lead."

The Expos made the night's work easy for Grimsley by staking him to a 6-0 lead in the first inning when they sent 10 men to the plate. Home runs by Carter and Andre Dawson, the seventh of the season for each, highlighted the inning.

National League

"I've never had that happen in the first inning," Grimsley said. "It was the first time I ever got to bat before I got to pitch."

The Expos, after winning seven in a row at home, are now 1-1 at the start of a 16-game road trip.

"This is our first major obstacle of the year," said Grimsley. "If we do well, it can help our confidence. If we keep playing the way we're playing, who knows?"

Carter drove in four runs for Montreal, three of them on his first-inning homer, and Larry Parrish drove in three runs with a pair of doubles. Grimsley helped his own cause with a pair of RBIs.

Reds 6, Astros 5

George Foster's bases-loaded single with none out in the 10th inning brought home the winning run for Cincinnati, which pulled to within 2½ games of front-running Houston in the NL West.

Johnny Bench, demoted to midway through the back stretch as Candy Eclair set the pace, moved to fourth about the halfmile pole, to third midway on the final turn and then took command for good.

Louis Haggin II's Himalayan finished second, two lengths ahead of longshot Prize Spot, owned by the Glen Hill Farm. Candy Eclair, owned by Mrs. Henry D. Paxson, faded to fourth in the field of six. Tourulla finished fifth and Winter Tour was last.

Davona Dale, sent off as the 2-5 favorite by a crowd of 47,330 on Kentucky Derby eve, was timed in 1:47 1-5 over the sloppy 1 1-16 mile course. It was the sixth Oaks victory in 105 runnings for the Calumet Farm.

McEnroe Dumps Jimmy Connors

DALLAS (AP) — John McEnroe dumped No. 2 seed Jimmy Connors 6-1, 6-4, 6-4 and top-seeded Bjorn Borg struggled past Vitas Gerulaitis 7-5, 7-6, 2-6, 6-2 to set up their championship match Sunday in the $200,000 World Championship Tennis tournament.

Velasquez Angry Despite Victory

By the Associated Press
LOUISVILLE — Jorge Velasquez had some sharp words for rival jockey Tony Black after guiding Calumet Farm's Davona Dale past Candy Eclair in the $115,000 Kentucky Oaks.

"My thought is that if I was a steward I would give that rider 10 to 15 days," said Velasquez after Friday's race for 3-year-old fillies at Churchill Downs. "He carried me out deliberately."

Davona Dale, the winning daughter of Best Turn, charged through the stretch for a 4½-length victory, taking over from Black's mount approaching the 1-16th mile pole.

"His horse was drifting out very little, but when he saw me coming he just let her go," said Velasquez, referring to Black. "He could do a better job than that. He's a professional."

But Black had a quick retort to the criticism.

"I wanted my filly to be on the outside. I thought if he (Velasquez) wanted to come to the inside of me, he should commit himself to the inside. I didn't think I should have to drop in at any time. I wanted to be on the outside."

Davona Dale was fifth midway through the back stretch as Candy Eclair set the pace, moved to fourth about the halfmile pole, to third midway on the final turn and then took command for good.

Louis Haggin II's Himalayan finished second, two lengths ahead of longshot Prize Spot, owned by the Glen Hill Farm. Candy Eclair, owned by Mrs. Henry D. Paxson, faded to fourth in the field of six. Tourulla finished fifth and Winter Tour was last.

Davona Dale, sent off as the 2-5 favorite by a crowd of 47,330 on Kentucky Derby eve, was timed in 1:47 1-5 over the sloppy 1 1-16 mile course. It was the sixth Oaks victory in 105 runnings for the Calumet Farm.
